Report to the Intersociety Pathology Council

March 2017

Submitted by Mark E. Sobel, MD, PhD, Executive Officer

Leadership: ASIP's current President is Dr. George Michalopoulos, who will be succeeded by Dr. Daniel Remick on July 1, 2017.

Membership: ASIP membership is 1,150.

Annual Meeting: ASIP meets with several other member societies of FASEB each year at the scientific conference "Experimental Biology." The 2017 meeting will be in Chicago, IL from April 22 to 26. Guest societies sponsored by ASIP include American College of Veterinary Pathologists, American Society for Matrix Biology, Association of Pathology Chairs, Society for Cardiovascular Pathology, Society of Toxicologic Pathology, and the Italian Society of Pathology and Translational Medicine. Dr. Michael Gimbrone, Jr. will receive the ASIP Gold-Headed Cane Award and Dr. Elaine Jaffe is the recipient of the ASIP Rous-Whipple Award. Dr. Robin Lorenz will receive the Robbins Distinguished Educator Award. Dr. Xiao-Ming Yin will receive the Outstanding Investigator Award and Dr. Katerina Politi will receive the Cotran Early Investigator Award. Dr. Chad Walesky will receive the Young Scientist Leadership Award.

Pathobiology for Investigators, Students, and Academicians (PISA): PISA is an annual scientific conference that takes place each Fall. The 2017 conference focused on "Breakthroughs in Biology: From Underlying Pathogenesis to Translational Medicine" and took place in Houston, TX from October 20 to 23. Dr. James Musser received the Rous-Whipple Award and Dr. Martha Furie received the Robbins Distinguished Educator Award during the conference. The 2017 PISA conference will focus on Genome and Environment: Implications in Development, Regeneration, Injury, Immunity, and Malignancy" and will take place in Pittsburgh, PA from September 25 to 27. In addition to invited world-renowned experts, there will be poster sessions and poster discussion break-out sessions.

Journals: ASIP's official journal is The American Journal of Pathology (AJP). Dr. Kevin Roth is the Editor-in-Chief. AJP and ASIP are charter members of the new NIH program to increase research reproducibility. Dr. Roth's five-year term will end in December 2017 and a search for his replacement is underway. Letters of intent are due April 1, 2017. ASIP also co-publishes The Journal of Molecular Diagnostics (JMD) bimonthly with the Association for Molecular Pathology. Dr. Barbara Zehnbaauer succeeded Timothy O'Leary as Editor-in-Chief of JMD in January 2015. Readers of JMD are eligible to register for an 18- credit hour CME/SAM program based on reading selected articles.

Management of other societies. ASIP currently manages the Intersociety Council for Pathology Information (ICPI), which includes administration of the Pathology Honor Society in cooperation with the Association of Pathology Chairs. ASIP also manages the annual meeting of the National Association of Medical Examiners (NAME).

Relationships with other societies. ASIP is a founding member of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology (since 1913), Experimental Biology (1993), Intersociety Council for Pathology Information (1957), Pathology Round Table (2012), and the Intersociety Pathology Council (1968), and is a cooperating society of the American Board of Pathology.
